African Village Arts Festival & Exhibit Returns to Olde Towne East

(Columbus, OH) - Urban Cultural Arts Foundation (UCAF) is getting ready for its fourth annual African Village Arts Festival (AVAF) occurring on Saturday August 21, 2010 from 11:00 AM to 7:00 PM at Old Central Community House, 1251 Bryden Road, Columbus 43205, next to Kwanzaa Playground. This unique arts festival offers Live Performances, Visual Art Exhibitions and demonstrations, a Youth Studio, Community art projects, Drum Circles, Traditional African Ceremonies, Ethnic Foods, and an Artist/ Vendor marketplace.

Admission is free to this family-friendly event. Free parking is also available in walking distance at Franklin Alternative Middle School. The Festival's name gives honor to those who established or still maintain families, homes and businesses in Olde Towne East, a historic area famed for being one of the city's first neighborhoods. The name is also meant to represent the sense of community, or village, the diverse artists and neighbors have extended to the Thomas Gallery for more than 30 years.

In conjunction with the Festival we will also open a new exhibit featuring the work of Larry Winston Collins, Associate Professor at Miami University-Oxford. The exhibit opening reception will occur on Sunday August 22, 2010 from 4:00 pm – 7:00pm at the William H. Thomas Gallery, 1270 Bryden Road in Columbus, OH.

Since 1978, UCAF has operated the William H. Thomas Gallery in Columbus' Olde Towne East; providing an outlet for both established and emerging artists along with being a unique resource for the patrons who hunger for authentic folk arts. Just like the Thomas Gallery, the African Village Arts Festival provides a space for artists and art lovers of every age and background to come together, create and generally enjoy the spirit of a fun, inclusive, well-organized community arts festival.
